2008 BUSINESS MANAGEMENT SEMINAR
CO-DEPENDENT BEHAVIOR:
HOW IT SABOTAGES EMPLOYEE PERFORMANCE &
BUSINESS GROWTH

Many companies invest in a great deal of time and money in training programs. While these training programs, which may include leadership, supervisory skills, customer service, and others, should be beneficial to employees, some companies do not see good results from their training investment. This seminar will help you identify co-dependent behavior, and determine whether or not it is affecting your employees. The seminar will review the characteristics of co-dependency and where it comes from, and discuss how co-dependent thinking and behavior can affect your employee's communications, work environment, morale, stress level, conduct, and self-confidence, and ultimately the overall growth and success of your company

Date: FRIDAY, MAY 23, 2008

Time: 8:00 a.m. Check-in
